Interesting and well illustrated account of this important expedition which travelled from the Atlantic coast through Kongo, passed Lake Victoria to Mombasa in the Indian Ocean. A wealth of material and scientific (mainly zoological and ethnographical) information was gathered. Hunting seemed quite important in most of the old expeditions who went to Afrika. This expedition, although not a real hunting expedition, was no exception, and many hunting trophies (lions, elephants, antilopes, okapi etc.) are depicted throughout the book.
