Set of five fine lithographed plates of the first living Orang-Outang in France drawn by J.C. Werner; 5 lithographic pls (complete as issued), small folio (37 x 28 cm), contemporary pebbled cloth. Some slight, scattered spotting but overall very good. An extremely rare work, with only 1 copy located at the British Library.
The first and only edition of a fine suite of plates, drawn and published on the occasion of the first arrival of a live orang-outang in France. According to 'Le magasin pittoresque' (July 1836), 'L'orang-outang du Museum d'histoire naturelle de Paris' states that before the arrival of the ape in 1836, the museum possessed only the skeleton and the stuffed skin of an orang-outang which had been donated to the museum by the Empress Josephine. This set of plates were possibly also intended to illustrate a monograph by Étienne Geoffroy Saint-Hilaire which was never finished.
The superb drawings by the French painter Jacques Christophe Werner (1798-1856), were published by Gabriel Aubert, notable publisher of the fine lithographic plates of Honore Daumier.
